1. The Central Administration Commission is believed to be the Commission responsible for the financial matters of the Partito Comunista Italiano (PCI).
2. According to a PCI publication, Istruzioni e Direttive di Lavoro, dated 20 December 1947, each Federation Committee is held responsible for submitting to the Central Administration Commission an organizational report and a financial statement on the outcome of the distribution of the membership cards. It was stated in this publication that all matters pertaining to the distribution of membership cards and dues collected were to be referred to the same Commission.
3. Egisto Cappellini, a member of the PCI Central Committee, is in charge of subject Commission. In June 1948, Cappellini made a detailed analysis of Party finances on a regional basis and submitted it to Palmiro Togliatti who in turn passed it to the Soviet Embassy in the form of a memorandum.
4. On 28 November 1949, the Central Administration Commission issued a circular to the various Federations concerning financial problems confronting the PCI.
